GDYNIA BLOCKADED BY GERMAN FLEET

Continued From Page One

nouncement Berlin's streets were still deserted except for the conventional early traffic, and there were no outward signs that the nation was finding itself in the first stages of war.

The government area was completely deserted, and the two guards doing sentry duty in front of the Chancellery remained their usual mute symbol of authority. It was only when official placards containing the orders to the populace began to appear on the billboards that early workers became aware of the situation.

Border Clashes Increase

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Friday, Sept. 1.—An increasing number of border incidents involving shooting and mutual Polish-German casualties are reported by the German press and radio. The most serious is reported from Gleiwitz, a German city on the line where the southwestern portion of Poland meets the Reich.

At 8 P. M., according to the semi-official news agency, a group of Polish insurrectionists forced an entrance into the Gleiwitz radio station, overpowering the watchmen and beating and generally mishandling the attendants. The Gleiwitz station was relaying a Breslau station's program, which was broken off by the Poles.

They proceeded to broadcast a prepared proclamation, partly in Polish and partly in German, announcing themselves as "the Polish Volunteer Corps of Upper Silesia speaking from the Polish station in Gleiwitz." The city, they alleged, was in Polish hands.

Gleiwitz's surprised radio listeners notified the police, who halted the broadcast and exchanged fire with the insurrectionists, killing one and capturing the rest. The police are said to have discovered that the attackers were assisted by regular Polish troops.

The Gleiwitz incident is alleged here to have been the signal for a general attack by Polish franc-tireurs on German territory.

Two other points—Pitschen, near Kreuzburg, and Hochlinden, northeast of Ratibor, both in the same vicinity, as Gleiwitz, were the scenes of violations of the German boundary, it is claimed, with fighting at both places still under way.

The attackers were all said to [illegible] heavily armed and supported [illegible] details of the regular Polish A[illegible] But it is further reported that [illegible] man border guards repulsed all [illegible] attempts.

Polish insurrectionists and [illegible] diers are alleged to have stor[illegible] the Hochlinden Custom H[illegible] which was recaptured by Ger[illegible] after a battle lasting for an[illegible] and a half. The number of [illegible] and wounded was not determ[illegible] because of darkness, but four [illegible] Poles, including six soldiers, [illegible] captured.

Many Casualties Reported

In the Pitschen incident a [illegible] of 100 Poles, including sol[illegible] were said to have been surp[illegible] two kilometers on the German [illegible] of the frontier. They are ac[illegible] of opening the fire, which wa[illegible] turned, resulting in the dea[illegible] two Poles and the capture of [illegible] teen, while the Germans lo[illegible] dead and many wounded.

Since Saturday Neuberun[illegible] near Gleiwitz, is said to have [illegible] subjected daily to Polish rifle [illegible] grenade attacks. These have [illegible] ously damaged property and [illegible] munications.

Polish bands assisted by so[illegible] are also said to have attacke[illegible] railroad station in the Alt [illegible] district of Rosenberg in East [illegible] sia. They were repulsed by [illegible] machine gunners, the Poles [illegible] ing an unknown number of men, the Germans one dead and one wounded, says the report.

In Katowice a Polish customs official is accused of forcing a German woman into Polish territory, although her companion escaped. Nothing is known of the whereabouts of the supposedly kidnapped woman.

Poles are accused also of endeavoring to cross the border and attempting to set fire to German houses. Germans report many attacks against Germans within Poland.

Poles Charge Border Violation

WARSAW, Aug. 31 (AP).—Polish sources asserted tonight that German patrols had crossed the border into Polish territory at several points. They also asserted that a German bomber had flown over Polish Silesia and had been pursued by Polish planes.

Daniels Becomes Dean Of Diplomats in Mexic[illegible]

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 31.—Ambassador Josephus Daniels h[illegible] become dean of the diplomat[illegible] corps in Mexico City with the d[illegible]parture of Abelardo Rocas, Brazilian Ambassador, who has b[illegible] appointed to a European post.

Mr. Rocas represented his g[illegible]ernment in the Mexican capi[illegible] since 1931; Mr. Daniels, next [illegible] seniority, presented his credentials to President Ortiz Rugio[illegible] April 24, 1933.

The whole diplomatic corps c[illegible]veyed personal congratulations [illegible] Mr. Daniels. He was the princi[illegible] speaker at a farewell din[illegible] given in Mr. Rocas's honor by [illegible] diplomatic corps last night, [illegible] which the guests included a[illegible] Ambassador Manuel Blanchi[illegible] Chile and Minister Henri Gol[illegible] of France, who are about to le[illegible] this capital for other posts.

NO WAR MOVES IN SPAIN

Government's Attitude Reflects Desire to Avoid Conflict

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Aug. 31.—Although the closest reserve is maintained concerning calls by Marshal Phillipe Pétain and Sir Maurice Peterson, the British and French Ambassadors, on Foreign Minister Juan Beigbeder yesterday, there is still no indication that Spain plans to enter Europe's threatened conflict.

There is no news of troop movements at the frontier, and the prices of shares here remain steady while other financial centers are registering intense alarm.

However, for the past three days the newspapers have taken a much more critical line toward "the intransigence of Britain and Poland." The Arriba, organ of the Falange Española, for example, argues that compromise has been a cardinal feature of British policy and asked why Prime Minister Chamberlain is so unyielding. Other newspapers feature stories from Berlin describing the calm and courage of the German people.

32 Die as Swedish Bridge Falls

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 31.—The new bridge joining the cities of Lunde and Sandoe across the River Aangermann, which has the largest concrete span in the world, collapsed today, killing thirty-two workers who were completing the structure. Apparently the workmen were just closing the span, which measures 720 feet, when some temporary timber supports failed.

historyimages.blogspot.com

German Field Fortifications 1939 Rar ->>> http://shurll.com/a0gps

17c23db493

Shinobi girl 2.5 uncensored
AutoSound 2000 CD-104 (CD104)
submerge mac with serial license key cimco v6
Naruto shippuden 257 vf game one office 2010 toolkit and ez-activator 2.2.4
Album DS Design 5.5.2
momoka nishina videos free download deutschland spielt unwrapper.exe download kostenlos-adds
Anno 2070 strategiebuch pdf